Following: line 7
Insert: "WHEREAS, there are a number of diseases that may be transmitted between game animals and livestock or humans; and

WHEREAS, the transmission of diseases between game animals and livestock, including the transmission of brucellosis from livestock to game animals in the 1800s, the retransmission of brucellosis from game animals to livestock, and the transmission of other diseases to livestock or humans, can have adverse impacts on the state economy; and

WHEREAS, it is much more cost-effective to attempt to prevent the transmission of disease between game animals and livestock or humans than it is to eradicate a disease after it is transmitted between game animals and livestock or humans; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks has been working and should continue to work collaboratively with the Department of Livestock to take reasonable and prudent steps to reduce the risk of transmission of disease between game animals and livestock or humans; and

WHEREAS, the goal of these efforts by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks should be to manage wildlife to prevent the transmission of disease between game animals and livestock or humans."
