The Montana Folklife Program

Folklife is creative expression learned informally by people who share a common ethnic, regional, or occupational heritage. The Montana Folklife Program supports, promotes and documents the folk artists and traditions of the Big Sky. We offer these services to artists and the public:

Documentation to identify, document, preserve and present folk arts and artists in Montana in the form of slides, photographs, video and audio tapes;

Programs to promote and present folk arts and artists including radio series, CD recordings, exhibits and demonstrations by Montana traditional artists;

Folk and Traditional Arts Apprenticeship Program linking a master artist in a learning experience or apprenticeship intended to last an extended period of time and encourages members of groups and communities to preserve and continue their cultural traditional heritage;

Technical assistance to folk artists and arts organizations in program development, fundraising and project planning;

Assistance to organizations in developing folk arts and cultural tourism with an emphasis on maintaining quality, authenticity and integrity;

Contact with other public agencies (local, state and federal) which have programs that support folklife and folk arts.
