1 INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiffs are registered voters residing in Senate District #15 (SD-15). They seek to enjoin
3 enforcement of a surprise, eleventh-hour amendment to the state’s redistricting plan. During the two 4 weeks preceding the Districting and Apportionment Commission’s (Commission) final hearing on 5 February 12, 2013, commissioners privately deliberated on how to open SD-9 in order to enable Sen.
6 Llew Jones to seek reelection in 2014. Without prior notice to the public, they approved an 7 amendment that opened SD-9 by reassigning a “holdover” senator to SD-15. Hours later, the 8 Commission filed its plan with the Secretary of State, resulting in its dissolution by operation of law.
9 Plaintiffs thus lacked any opportunity to object at a subsequent hearing.

10 One commissioner described the Commission’s amendment policy as requiring “voters
11 throughout Montana” to “stay tuned to the very last meeting if they had any concerns about what the 12 Commission was doing, because the Commission could make changes up to the very last minute.”
13 (Ex 36, p.104.) Making matters worse, the Commission imposed a deadline of February 11 for the 14 public to submit written objections, (Ex 33), thereby making it impossible for Plaintiffs to object in 15 writing to the surprise holdover amendment first presented during the Commission’s final meeting
16 on February 12. Another commissioner now acknowledges that approval of the holdover
17 amendment was improper. (Ex. 34, pp. 34, 91.) Indeed, it violated Montana law.

18 The holdover amendment significantly impacts SD-15. For 95% of its voters, 2010 was the 19 most recent opportunity to cast ballots for state senate candidates. The amendment will delay the 20 next senate election for SD-15 until 2016, thereby disenfranchising 19,000 voters in SD-15 for two 21 years in order to advance Sen. Jones’ next campaign by two years. Meanwhile, these voters will be 22 saddled until 2016 with a holdover senator who has never appeared on their ballots.

23 The Commission’s last-minute amendment was unlawful for at least six reasons:

- 24
- 25 1) The Commission’s private deliberations on holdover amendments violated the public’s Right
26 to Know under Article II, § 9, of the Montana Constitution;
 - 27 2) The Commission violated Article II, § 8, of the Constitution by approving a holdover 28 amendment that had not been disclosed to the public until the final hearing on February 12, while imposing a deadline of February 11 for public comment on amendments;

- 1 3) The Commission also violated Article II, § 8 by failing to provide specific notice in its 2 agenda for February 12 regarding holdover amendments;
- 3 4) The Commission also violated Article II, § 8 by failing to provide a reasonable opportunity 4 for Plaintiffs to rebut contentions made during its private deliberations;
- 5 5) The Commission failed to submit its holdover amendment to the Legislature for 6 recommendations as required by Article V, §14(4) of the Constitution;
- 7 6) Advancing Sen. Jones' campaign two years by disenfranchising 19,000 residents in SD-15
8 for two years violates Plaintiffs' Right of Suffrage under Article II, § 13.

9 Plaintiffs therefore seek an order declaring the Commission's last-minute holdover
10 amendment to be void and enjoining the State from enforcing it. Plaintiffs do not challenge any 11 other portion of the redistricting plan.

12 STATEMENT OF FACTS

13 I THE COMMISSION'S ASSIGNMENT OF "HOLDOVER SENATORS"

16 The Commission prepares a plan each decade for redistricting and reapportioning the state's 17 legislative districts, including its 50 senate districts. (State's Ans., ¶¶48-49.) Montana's senators 18 serve four-year terms and are elected on a staggered schedule, resulting in 25 senators elected in 19 2010 serving terms extending through 2014, and 25 senators elected in 2012 serving terms extending 20 through 2016. Art. V, § 3, Mont. Const. Senators in the latter group are referred to as "holdover"
21 senators because they do not seek reelection in 2014 when the new districts become effective but are 22 instead "held over" to 2016, when their terms expire. (Ex. 35, pp.14-15.) The Commission's 23 assignment of holdover senators to districts results in those districts having their next senate election
24 in 2016. (Ex 34, pp. 34-35.) Therefore, if the Commission assigns a holdover senator to a district 25 that had its most recent senate election in 2010, that district's voters must wait six years between 26 senate elections rather than four years.

27 The 2010 Commission consisted of five members. The Montana Supreme Court appointed 28 former Associate Justice James "Jim" Regnier as Chairman. (Ex 35, p.13.) Republican caucuses in

1 the Legislature appointed Jonathan “Jon” Bennion and Linda Vaughey and Democratic caucuses
2 appointed Joseph “Joe” Lamson and Carol Williams. (Ex 34, pp.14-16.)¹

3 The Commission assigned all 25 holdover senators during a meeting on November 30, 2012.
4 (Ex 5, pp.14-15; Ex 34, pp. 48-49.) These assignments included Sen. Rick Ripley to SD-9, Sen.
5 Bradley Hamlett to SD-10, and no holdover to SD-15. (Ex 7; Ex 13 [map depicting assignments].)

6 On January 8, 2013, the Commission presented its plan, including holdover assignments, to 7 the Legislature. (Ex 12, p.21) The Legislature submitted recommendations to the Commission that 8 included a request to reassign Roger Webb, a Billings-area holdover senator. (Ex 19; Ex 20.) It did
9 not request any other holdover reassignments. (Ex. 19; Ex. 20.)

10
11 II THE DECISION NOT TO PUBLISH COMMISSIONERS’ PROPOSED HOLDOVER
12 AMENDMENTS BEFORE THE FINAL MEETING ON FEBRUARY 12, 2013

13 The Commission enacted Operating Procedures in 2011 to “serve as a guide to the public 14 about what to expect from the commission and the opportunities they will have to participate in the 15 redistricting process.” (Ex 1, p.1.) These included a procedure for public comment on amendments:

16 The commission and its staff may recommend public comments be 17 sent before a certain date to ensure the comments can be taken into 18 consideration during the mapping process and then before the commission begins to vote on plans and amendments.

19 (Ex 1, p.4.) On February 1, 2013, the Commission advised the public of its final meeting on 20 February 12 and that “as possible amendments are proposed by the commissioners, the amendments
21 will be posted on the website under the ‘Meeting Materials’ section.” (Ex 33.) The Commission 22 further advised that written comments “should be submitted by February 11 at noon in order to be 23 distributed to the commissioners at their meeting.” (Ex 33.)

24 An hour after the Commission issued this statement, Commissioner Bennion asked the staff
25 to prepare an amendment reassigning Sens. Ripley and Hamlett from SD-9 to SD-10 and SD-10 to 26 SD-12, respectively. (Ex 16; Ex 34, p.79.) Commissioner Bennion’s request resulted from a letter

27
28 ¹ Commissioner Williams replaced Commissioner Pat Smith in January 2013. (Ex 34, pp.16-17.)

1 received the previous day from Rep. Rob Cook, eleven other legislators, and four state educators.
2 (Ex 14; Ex 15; Ex 34, pp.63-64.) The letter’s signatories decried the Commission’s “significant 3 oversight” in leaving Sen. Jones “without a Senate district.” (Ex. 15.) This was a reference to the 4 Commission’s original assignment of Sen. Ripley to SD-9, resulting in that district’s next senate
5 election occurring in 2016. (Ex 12, p.21.) Because Sen. Jones lives in what is now SD-9 and his 6 term expires in 2014, (Ex 13; Ex 34, p.74), Sen. Ripley’s assignment to SD-9 blocked Sen. Jones
7 from seeking reelection in SD-9 in 2014. The letter requested the Commission “provide Senator
8 Jones with a Senate district in which he can run during the upcoming (2014) elections.” (Ex 15.)

9 The staff responded to Commissioner Bennion’s request for a holdover amendment by 10 stating that “we can put the House amendments up on the website, but we don’t need to do them for 11 the holdover assignments, because it is just moving somebody over.” (Ex 34, p.119; see also Ex 16.)
12 Commissioner Bennion believes holdover amendments should have been posted because voters were 13 entitled to know (1) the identity of their potential senator and (2) the possibility that they would have 14 to wait six years for their next senate election. (Ex 34, p.107.)

15 Between February 2 and February 10, the Commission posted ten amendments proposed by 16 commissioners concerning House district boundaries. (Ex 37 [Stipulated Fact #17].) No proposed 17 amendments to reassign Sen. Ripley out of SD-9 were ever posted on the Commission’s website, 18 however, nor was there any other notice of such amendments. (Ex 34, pp. 33-34, 107; Ex 36, p.
19 105.)

20 21 III THE COMMISSION’S PRIVATE DELIBERATIONS REGARDING HOLDOVER 22 AMENDMENTS PRIOR TO THE MEETING ON FEBRURY 12

23 Between February 1 and February 7, Commissioners Lamson and Williams discussed Sen.
24 Jones’ situation during five telephone calls. (Ex 36, pp.70-71.) Commissioner Lamson also spoke 25 with Commissioner Regnier approximately ten times between February 1 and February 7 on aiding 26 Sen. Jones by reassigning holdover senators. (Ex 36, pp.71-72.) Commissioners Bennion and 27 Vaughey also conferred around that time on opening SD-9 for Sen. Jones. (Ex 34, pp.81-82.)
28

1 There were eventually two competing proposals by commissioners for opening SD-9. The 2 one proposed by Commissioner Bennion reassigned Sen. Ripley to SD-10 and Sen. Hamlett from 3 SD-10 to SD-12. (Ex 16.) A proposal by Commissioners Lamson and Williams also reassigned Sen.
4 Ripley to SD-10, but reassigned Sen. Hamlett to SD-15, (Ex 30), where Plaintiffs reside.²

5 On February 8, Commissioner Bennion met with Commissioner Lamson and tried to 6 convince him to support the amendment moving Sen. Hamlett to SD-12 rather than to SD-15. (Ex
7 34, pp. 84-86; Ex 36, pp. 91-92.) Commissioner Lamson rejected this proposal as benefiting
8 Republicans. (Ex 36, p.92.)

9 The commissioners knew that Chairman Regnier would break any ties and therefore pitched 10 their amendments to him. (Ex 34, p. 89; Ex 36, p. 97.) Chairman Regnier was “always striving to 11 get as much consensus as possible,” including with regard to the Jones situation. (Ex 35, pp.41-42.)
12 On February 9, Commissioner Bennion sent an email to Chairman Regnier with “Llew Jones” on the 13 subject line expressing concern with Commissioner Lamson’s proposal to “stick [Sen.] Ripley in a 14 district that contains none of his voters.” (Ex 17.) Commissioner Bennion promised to “crunch 15 numbers for you so you can see the most reasonable choices” because holdover reassignments need
16 to be “based upon sound reasoning and defensible arguments.” (Ex. 17.) He prepared a “fact sheet”
17 the following day entitled “Llew Jones Situation” containing statistics showing the number of 18 “Ripley voters” and “Hamlett voters” in newly drawn senate districts. (Ex. 18; Ex 34, p.98.) He 19 included in the document his conclusion that Sen. Ripley and Sen. Hamlett should be reassigned to 20 SD-10 and SD-12, respectively. (Ex. 18.) Chairman Regnier, Commissioner Lamson, and 21 Commissioner Williams discussed the statistics contained in Commissioner Bennion’s fact sheet
22 prior to February 12. (Ex 34, p.98; Ex 36, p.99.) Commissioner Lamson told Chairman Regnier and 23 Commissioner Williams that the statistics were accurate but not conclusive. (Ex 36, p.99.)

26 ² These commissioners also suggested reassigning Sen. Ripley directly to SD-15. (Ex 29, p.2; Ex 27 36, pp.65-66.) Commissioners Bennion and Vaughney rejected this idea and it was not pursued
28 further. (Ex 18; Ex 36, pp.89-91.)

1 On February 10, Commissioners Lamson and Williams spoke further regarding Sen. Jones.
2 (Ex 36, pp. 77, 95.) Commissioner Lamson also spoke to Chairman Regnier, who “tr[ie]d to find out
3 how we could reach some consensus and move forward.” (Ex 36, p.79.) They also discussed the 4 positions of the other commissioners. (Ex 36, p.79.)

5 Commissioner Lamson explained to Chairman Regnier in an email sent later that day that 6 Commissioner Bennion’s proposed amendment was a “blatant GOP move to decrease by one the 7 number of likely Democratic seats up for election in 2014.” (Ex. 30.) He argued that “the only
8 option that places no hardship or harm on either party is simply reassigning holdovers Senator
9 Ripley and Hamlett one seat to the east,” i.e., to SD-10 and SD-15, respectively. (Ex. 30.)
10 Commissioner Lamson also reasoned that these senators were “term limited” and thus would not be 11 “harmed” by the reassignments. (Ex 30.)

12 Chairman Regnier also spoke with Commissioner Bennion on February 10 and proposed a 13 “global motion” that included a resolution to Sen. Jones’ situation as well as reconfiguring senate
14 seats in Flathead County. (Ex 34, pp.93-95; Ex 35, pp. 46-47.) They discussed Commissioner
15 Lamson’s proposed amendment to reassign Sens. Ripley and Hamlett to SD-10 and SD-15,
16 respectively. (Ex 34, pp.93-94.) Commissioner Bennion disagreed with the proposal because SD-15
17 had few “Hamlett voters” and Sen. Hamlett would be unfamiliar with the district. (Ex 34, p.94.)

18 On February 11, the day before the final hearing, Chairman Regnier went to Commissioner
19 Bennion’s office and “really press[ed] on a global amendment.” (Ex 34, p.96.) Commissioner 20 Bennion responded by “trying to plead my case” and “presenting the information that I had 21 developed, as far as the statistics,” to persuade Chairman Regnier that Sens. Ripley and Hamlett
22 should be reassigned to SD-10 and SD-12, respectively. (Ex 34, pp.96-97.)

23 Commissioners Bennion and Lamson conferred again on February 11 regarding Sen. Jones.
24 (Ex 36, p.95.) That same day, Commissioner Lamson spoke briefly with Commissioner Williams as 25 well as Chairman Regnier regarding holdover amendments. (Ex 36, pp.95-97.)

26 The Commission did not publish the communications among commissioners regarding 27 holdover amendments to open SD-9. (Ex 34, pp. 97-99; Ex 35, pp.61.) It did publish a “Tentative 28 Agenda” for the February 12th hearing. (Ex. 22.) The only “Action item” listed, however, was to

1 “Discuss and revise Tentative Commission Plan, including justifications for any deviations from 2 ideal population.” (Ex 22.) The agenda contained no reference to proposed holdover amendments.
3 (Ex 22.) Though labeled “Tentative,” the agenda was never updated. (Ex 34, p.106.)

4 At 10:28 a.m. during the final meeting on February 12 -- almost literally the eleventh-hour --
5 Chairman Regnier offered an amendment to reassign Sen. Ripley to SD-10 and Sen. Hamlett to SD-
6 15, (hereinafter, the “Jones Amendment”), which was approved on a 3-2 vote. (Ex 23, pp.7, 9.)³ No
7 public comment was offered. (Ex. 23, p.9.) Commissioners delivered the plan to the Secretary of 8 State later that day, resulting in the Commission’s dissolution by operation of law. (Ex 34, p.112;
9 Art. V, §14(5), Mont. Const.)

11 IV THE TWO-YEAR DISENFRANCHISEMENT OF SD-15 VOTERS RESULTING FROM 12 THE COMMISSION ADVANCING SEN. JONES’S CAMPAIGN BY TWO YEARS

13 The Commission’s plan submitted to the Legislature in January 2013 did not include a 14 holdover assignment for SD-15, meaning that the next senate election for that district would have 15 occurred in 2014. (Ex 12, p.21.) As a result of the Jones Amendment, Sen. Hamlett is now assigned 16 to SD-15 and Plaintiffs must now wait until 2016 to vote for a senate candidate. (Ex 38 [Plaintiffs’
17 Affidavits, ¶ 6].) Plaintiffs residing in Fergus County were similarly disenfranchised during the last 18 redistricting cycle. (Id., ¶ 7.) Had they known in advance of the Jones Amendment, they would 19 have objected, both in writing and in person. (Id., ¶ 9.)

20
21 ARGUMENT

22 The purpose of a motion for summary judgment is “to encourage judicial economy and to 23 eliminate the delay and expense of unnecessary trials.” Silverstrone v. Park County, 2007 MT 261 ¶ 24 9, 339 Mont. 299, 170 P.3d 950. Summary judgment “should be rendered if the pleadings, the 25 discovery, and any affidavits show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, and that the 26

27
28 ³ The holdover configuration resulting from the Jones Amendment is shown in Exhibit 21.

1 moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law.” M.R.Civ.P. Rule 56(c)(3). A party may 2 move for summary judgment at any time. M.R.Civ.P. Rule 56(c)(1)(A).

4 I. THE COMMISSION’S PRIVATE DELIBERATIONS ON REASSIGNING
5 HOLDOVER SENATORS VIOLATED THE PUBLIC’S RIGHT TO KNOW
6 UNDER ARTICLE II, § 9 OF THE CONSTITUTION

7 Article II, § 9 of the Montana Constitution affords the public a right to know the workings of 8 public bodies and agencies.⁴ This right “is to be given a broad and liberal interpretation.” Bryan v.
9 Yellowstone School Dist., 2002 MT 264, ¶23, 312 Mont. 257, 60 P.3d 381, quoting SJL of Mont.
10 Assoc. v. City of Billings, 263 Mont. 142, 146, 867 P.2d 1084, 1086 (1993). It is “self-executing –
11 that is, legislation is not required to give it effect.” Bozeman Daily Chronicle v. Police Dept., 260
12 Mont. 218, 231, 859 P.2d 435, 443 (1993).

13 The Right to Know includes a right to “observe the deliberations of all public bodies and 14 agencies of state government....” Art. II, § 9, Mont. Const. A “deliberation” is “[t]he act of 15 weighing and examining the reasons for and against a contemplated act or course of conduct or a
16 choice of acts or means.” SJL, 867 P.2d at 1088 (Trieweiler, J., dissenting), quoting Black’s Law 17 Dictionary 427 (6th ed.1990). This constitutional right is thus “more than a simple requirement that 18 only the final voting be done in public.” Associated Press v. Crofts, 2004 MT 120, ¶31, 321 Mont.
19 193, 89 P.3d 971. As other courts have held, laws such as the Right to Know apply not only to 20 deliberations occurring when agency board members physically convene in a meeting room but also 21 when members engage in serial, one-on-one communications among themselves regarding an issue
22 within the agency’s jurisdiction. Stockton Newspapers v. Redevelopment Agency, 214 Cal.Rptr. 561,

23
24 ⁴ Article II, 9 of the Montana Constitution states as follows:

25 No person shall be deprived of the right to examine documents or to observe 26 the deliberations of all public bodies or agencies of state government and its 27 subdivisions, except in cases in which the demand of individual privacy 28 clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure.

1 564-65 (Cal.Ct.App.1985). The reasoning in Stockton Newspapers is instructive:

2 An informal conference or caucus permits crystallization of secret
3 decisions to a point just short of ceremonial acceptance. There is 4 rarely any purpose to a nonpublic premeeting conference except to conduct some part of the decisional process behind closed doors.

5 Id., 214 Cal.Rptr. at 564. That the deliberations in Stockton Newspapers consisted of one-on-one
6 telephone conversations between agency board members and the agency’s attorney made no 7 difference: “no reason appears why the contemporaneous physical presence at a common site of the 8 members of a legislative body is a requisite of such an informal meeting.” Id., 214 Cal.Rptr. at 564.
9 Courts around the nation have followed Stockton Newspapers’s reasoning.⁵

10 Though no Montana opinion addresses the applicability of the Constitution’s Right to Know
11 to serial, one-on-one deliberations among an agency’s governing members, the reasoning in Stockton
12 Newspapers and its progeny is sound and should be followed by this Court. The commissioners’
13 communications among themselves as to the pros and cons of the various proposed amendments 14 constituted “deliberations,” i.e., “act[s] of weighing and examining the reasons for and against a ...

1 choice of ... means” for opening SD-9 for Sen. Jones. Black’s Law Dictionary 427 (6th ed.1990).

2 These acts included the following:

- 3
- 4 • At least 15 telephone conversations between Commissioner Lamson and other 5 commissioners between February 1 and February 7 regarding Sen. Jones, (Ex 36, pp.70-72);
 - 6 • A discussion between Commissioners Bennion and Vaughey around this time on how to 7 open SD-9 for Sen. Jones, (Ex 34, pp.81-82);
 - 8 • A meeting between Commissioners Lamson and Bennion on February 8 to discuss aiding 9 Sen. Jones by reassigning Sen. Ripley out of SD-9, (Ex 34, pp. 84-87, 99; Ex 36, pp. 91-92.);
 - 10 • An email from Commissioner Bennion to Chairman Regnier on February 9 complaining 11 about Commissioner Lamson’s proposed amendment and pitching his own amendment for 12 opening SD-9, (Ex 17);
 - 13 • A “fact sheet” prepared by Commissioner Bennion and reviewed by Chairman Regnier as 14 well as Commissioners Lamson and Williams containing statistics on “Ripley voters” and 15 “Hamlett voters” in various districts and why those statistics allegedly supported 16 Commissioner Bennion’s proposed amendment, (Ex 18; Ex 34, p.98; Ex 36, p.99);
 - 17 • An additional discussion between Commissioners Lamson and Williams on February 10
18 regarding Sen. Jones, (Ex 36, pp. 77, 95);
 - 19 • A telephone conference and follow-up email on February 10 between Commissioner Lamson
20 and Chairman Regnier in which Chairman Regnier “tr[ie]d to find out how we could reach 21 some consensus and move forward,” while Commissioner Lamson described the merits of 22 the proposed amendment to move Sen. Hamlett to SD-15 and criticized Commissioner 23 Bennion’s proposed amendment, (Ex 30; Ex 36, pp.79);
 - 24 • A telephone conference on February 10 between Chairman Regnier and Commissioner
25 Bennion in which Chairman Regnier discussed a “global motion” that included a solution to 26 Sen. Jones’ problem as well as the benefits and drawbacks of Commissioner Lamson’s 27 proposal, (Ex 34, pp.93-95);
 - 28 • A series of discussions on February 11 involving Chairman Regnier and Commissioners
Bennion, Lamson and Williams that included “pressing for a global amendment,” and “pleading” their cases with supporting statistics. (Ex 34, pp.96-99; Ex 36, p.95, 97.)

27 All of these acts of weighing and examining by the commissioners involved proposed 28 amendments for reassigning Sen. Ripley out of SD-9 in order to open it for Sen. Jones in 2014 and

1 were therefore “deliberations” under Article II, § 9. They should have been observable by the 2 public, but were not. The public never knew the pros and cons for each amendment discussed
3 during these deliberations. Indeed, the public never knew these deliberations were occurring at all.
4 For this reason alone, the Court should void the Jones Amendment reassigning Sen. Ripley to SD-10
5 and Sen. Hamlett to SD-15.

7 II. THE COMMISSION’S DEADLINE OF FEBRUARY 11 FOR PUBLIC COMMENTS
8 ON AMENDMENTS, FOLLOWED BY ITS APPROVAL OF A SURPRISE
9 AMENDMENT ON FEBRUARY 12, VIOLATED THE PUBLIC’S RIGHT TO 10 PARTICIPATE UNDER ARTICLE II, § 8 OF THE CONSTITUTION

11 Article II, § 8 of the Constitution guarantees Montanans a reasonable opportunity to 12 participate in agency operations prior to final decisions being made.⁶ Unlike Article II, § 9, the 13 Right to Participate in Article II, § 8 is not self-executing but is instead applicable “as may be 14 provided by law,” thereby requiring enabling statutes to effectuate it. 51 Mont. Op. No.12 Atty.
15 Gen. at 4; Fritz Snyder, The Right to Participate and the Right to Know in Montana, 66 MONT.
16 L.REV. 297, 303 (Summer 2005). Accordingly, the Legislature enacted statutes “pursuant to the 17 mandate of Article II, § 8...” § 2-3-101, MCA. These include statutes requiring that agencies 18 “develop procedures for permitting and encouraging the public to participate in agency decisions
19 that are of significant interest to the public.” § 2-3-103(1)(a), MCA. These procedures “must ensure 20 adequate notice and assist public participation before a final agency action is taken that is of 21 significant interest to the public.” Id. They must also “include a method of affording interested 22 persons reasonable opportunity to submit data, views, or arguments, orally or in written form, prior 23 to making a final decision that is of significant interest to the public.” § 2-3-111(1)(a), MCA.

26 ⁶ Article II, 8 of the Montana Constitution states as follows:

27 The public has the right to expect governmental agencies to afford such 28 reasonable opportunity for citizen participation in the operation of the agencies prior to the final decision as may be provided by law.

1 The Commission enacted Operating Procedures to “serve as a guide to the public about what
2 to expect from the commission and the opportunities they will have to participate in the redistricting
3 process.” (Ex 1, p.1.) These included a procedure applicable to public comment on amendments:

5 The commission and its staff may recommend public comments be 6 sent before a certain date to ensure the comments can be taken into 7 consideration during the mapping process and then before the 8 commission begins to vote on plans and amendments.

9 (Ex 1, p.4.) In accordance with this procedure, the Commission issued a press release on February 1 10 stating that “as possible amendments are proposed by the commissioners, the amendments will be 11 posted on the website under the ‘Meeting Materials’ section.” (Ex. 33.) The Commission further 12 advised that written comments “should be submitted by February 11 at noon in order to be 13 distributed to the commissioners at their meeting” on February 12. (Ex 33.)

14 Though the Commission posted commissioners’ proposed House district amendments prior 15 to the hearing on February 12, (Ex. 37 [Stipulated Fact #17]), it inexplicably refused to post
16 commissioners’ proposed holdover amendments. An hour after the Commission issued its press
17 release on February 1, Commissioner Bennion asked the staff to prepare an amendment reassigning
18 Sen. Ripley from SD-9 to SD-10 and Sen. Hamlett from SD-10 to SD-12. (Ex 16; Ex 34, p.79.) The 19 staff explained that “we can put the House amendments up on the website, but we don’t need to do 20 them for the holdover assignments, because it is just moving somebody over.” (Ex 34, p.119; see 21 also Ex 16.) The public could not have received notice of holdover amendments from any source
22 besides the Commission’s website. (Ex 34, p.34.) Commissioner Bennion’s proposed amendment 23 was never posted, something he admits should have occurred. (Ex 34, pp. 33-34, 107.) Nor was 24 Commissioner Lamson’s proposal to reassign Sen. Ripley to SD-10 and Sen. Hamlett to SD-15 ever
25 posted. (Ex 36, p.105.)

26 Despite the Commission’s public commitment to post to its website amendments proposed 27 by commissioners, Chairman Regnier stated that the Commission could nevertheless approve 28 nonposted amendments presented at the last minute:

1 [I]f our Legislative Services staff had received a proposed amendment by a
2 commissioner, I would expect them to post it. But I always maintain, and I told 3 the commissioners this and the Legislative Services staff this, that I would 4 consider any amendment at the time of our February 12th meeting that any 5 commissioners wanted to propose.... If somebody from the public came and 6 said, you know, ‘We think you ought to tweak this here or tweak that there,’ I
7 would have taken a vote on it, if one of the commissioners had proposed it
8 through an amendment, and that certainly would not have been posted.

7 (Ex 35, pp.86-87.) Commissioner Lamson accurately described the consequence of this policy:

8 The voters in Senate District 15, as well as the voters throughout Montana
9 ...should stay tuned to the very last meeting if they had any concerns about 10 what the Commission was doing, because the Commission could make 11 changes up to the very last minute.

11 (Ex 36, p.104.)

12 A policy forcing every concerned Montanan to “stay tuned to the very last meeting” of an 13 agency and “up to the very last minute” of that last meeting in case the agency takes unannounced
14 actions is exactly what the Constitution’s Right to Participate was intended to prohibit. Bryan, ¶ 40, 15 quoting Mont. Const. Conv. Tr., Vol. V at 1655 (“What is intended by [Article II] Section 8 is that 16 any rules and regulations that shall be made and formulated and announced by any governmental 17 agency... shall not be made until some notice is given so that the citizen will have a reasonable 18 opportunity to participate with respect to his opinion, either for or against that particular 19 administrative action”).

20 Moreover, the Commission’s policy of entertaining and approving surprise amendments at its 21 very last meeting collided with Plaintiffs’ right to “a reasonable opportunity to submit data, views, or 22 arguments, orally or in written form, prior to making a final decision that is of significant interest to 23 the public.” § 2-3-111(1), MCA (emphasis added). The Commission required the public to submit
24 written comments by noon on February 11 in order for them to be considered at the following day’s 25 meeting. (Ex 33.) This was a reasonable requirement. The Commission was unreasonable, 26 however, in permitting surprise amendments to be raised and approved during its final meeting -- a
27 day after the written comment period had expired -- especially when Plaintiffs (and, likely, others)
28 would have submitted written comments if they had known of the Jones Amendment. (Ex 38, ¶9.)

1 The proper way for agencies to take action on items that first arise during a meeting was 2 outlined by then-Attorney General Mike McGrath: simply hold a subsequent meeting and provide
3 notice and a reasonable opportunity for public comment regarding the particular action. 51 Mont.
4 Op. No.12 Atty. Gen. at 10-11. This procedure could have, and should have, been followed by the 5 Commission for matters like the Jones Amendment that were, in the words of Commissioner
6 Lamson, brought up at “the very last minute” of “the very last meeting.” (Ex 36, p.104.) Because 7 the Commission received the Legislature’s recommendations during the first week of February, it
8 had until March before being legally required to file a plan with the Secretary of State. (Ex 35, 9 pp.82-83; Art. V, § 14(4), Mont. Const.) It could have scheduled a subsequent meeting to allow an 10 opportunity for public comment on the Jones Amendment. Instead the Commission filed its plan 11 with the Secretary of State hours after approving the amendment, then immediately dissolved by 12 operation of law. (Ex 34, p.112; Art. V, §14(5), Mont. Const.)

13 The Commission was entitled to entertain and approve surprise amendments at the hearing
14 on February 12. It was entitled to hold no additional hearing after February 12. But under § 2-3-15 111(1), MCA, it was not entitled to do both. The Commission’s approval of the Jones Amendment 16 on February 12 violated the Constitution’s Right to Participate, the provision’s enabling statutes, and 17 its own Operating Procedures. The Jones Amendment must therefore be declared void.

19 III THE COMMISSION ALSO VIOLATED ARTICLE II, § 8 BY FAILING TO 20 PROVIDE SPECIFIC NOTICE OF HOLDOVER AMENDMENTS IN THE 21 AGENDA FOR THE MEETING ON FEBRUARY 12

22 The enabling statutes for Article II, § 8 also require agendas that give meaningful notice of 23 meetings, without which “an ‘open’ meeting is open in theory only, not in practice.” Common 24 Cause v. Statutory Committee, 263 Mont. 324, 331, 868 P.2d 604, 609 (1994), quoting Board of 25 Trustees v. Board of County Commissioners, 186 Mont. 148, 152, 606 P.2d 1069, 1071 (1980).
26 Agencies therefore cannot lawfully “take action on any matter discussed unless specific notice of 27 that matter is included on an agenda and public comment has been allowed on that matter.” § 2-3-28 103(1)(a), MCA (emphasis added).

1 While the Montana Supreme Court has not yet decided what “specific notice” requires, vague
2 generalities in agendas are presumably insufficient, particularly since delegates to the Constitutional
3 Convention envisioned Article II, § 8, the provision which spawned § 2-3-103(1)(a), MCA, as 4 requiring notice whenever an agency contemplates taking a “particular administrative action.”
5 Bryan, ¶ 40, quoting Mont. Const. Conv. Tr., Vol. V at 1655 (emphasis added); see also Wilson v.
6 City of Tecumseh, 194 P.3d 140, 144 (Okla.Ct.App.2008) (city agenda’s reference to “employment”
7 gave insufficient notice of intent to give city employee $30,000 bonus); Cox Enterprises, Inc. v. Bd
8 of Trustees, 706 S.W.2d 956, 959 (Tex.1986) (“personnel” was too vague to notify the public of the 9 hiring of a new school superintendent).

10 The Commission published on (or about) February 1 its “Tentative Agenda” for the hearing
11 on February 12. (Ex. 22; Ex 37 [Stipulated Fact #7].) The only “Action item” listed was to “Discuss 12 and revise Tentative Commission Plan, including justifications for any deviations from ideal
13 population.” (Ex. 22.) Though labeled “Tentative,” the agenda was never updated, (Ex 34, p.106), 14 despite the almost two-weeks of deliberations on proposed amendments for opening SD-9 prior to 15 the meeting on February 12. The agenda thus failed to meet the “specific notice” requirement in § 2-16 3-103(1)(a), MCA, thereby rendering the Jones Amendment void. § 2-3-114, MCA.

18 IV. THE COMMISSION ALSO VIOLATED ARTICLE II, § 8 BY DEPRIVING
19 PLAINTIFFS OF THE OPPORTUNITY TO REBUT CONTENTIONS MADE
20 DURING ITS PRIVATE DELIBERATIONS

21 Besides failing to give adequate notice as described in detail in the previous sections of this 22 brief, the Commission violated Article II, § 8 in another manner. Even if Plaintiffs had had the 23 prescience to know before February 12 that the Commission was planning to assign a holdover 24 senator to their district, showing up at the hearing without knowing the substance of the 25 commissioners’ earlier, private deliberations would have given Plaintiffs nothing more than an 26 “uninformed opportunity to speak.” Bryan, ¶ 44. In order “to participate effectively and 27 knowledgeably in the political process of a democracy one must be permitted the fullest imaginable 28 freedom of speech and one must be fully apprised of what government is doing, has done, and is

1 proposing to do.” Bryan, ¶ 31 (citations omitted). This requires that “when an agency proposes a 2 new rule,” it “provide sufficient factual detail and rationale for the rule to permit interested parties to
3 comment meaningfully.” Bryan, ¶43, quoting Florida Power & Light Co. v. United States, 846 F.2d
4 765, 771 (D.C.Cir.1988). Thus, “at a minimum, the ‘reasonable opportunity’ standard articulated in 5 Article II, Section § 8, and § 2-3-111, MCA, demands compliance with the right to know contained
6 in Article II, Section § 9.” Bryan, ¶44. Put another way, an agency that fails to permit observation
7 of its deliberations as required by Article II, § 9 has, a fortiori, violated the Right to Participate
8 guaranteed by Article II, § 8.

9 The rule in Bryan required the Commission to allow observation of its deliberations
10 concerning proposed holdover amendments. As a result of the Commission’s failure to do so,
11 Plaintiffs were deprived of their right to a reasonable opportunity to participate in the Commission’s 12 operations prior to the final decision on the Jones Amendment. They did not know of the various 13 amendments commissioners debated, nor the reasons commissioners offered for and against those 14 amendments. They did not see (or even know about) the statistical “fact sheet” prepared by 15 Commissioner Bennion in support of his proposed amendment that was distributed to other 16 commissioners. Cf. Bryan, ¶¶ 45-46 (school district’s failure to disclose internal document 17 containing school ratings deprived plaintiff of reasonable opportunity to argue against proposed 18 school closure).

19 Chairman Regnier contends that providing the public in advance with this information would 20 not have mattered “because the approach that Jon Bennion was proposing was to keep Senate
21 District 15 open, which I think is what [Plaintiffs] are proposing in their lawsuit. And so I think 22 their interests were served by Jon....” (Ex 35, p.62.) There are three problems with that contention.

23 First, Plaintiffs’ right to relief under Article II, § 8, is not contingent on proving their 24 arguments would have carried the day. Rather, the public has a right to a “genuine interchange”
25 with agencies. Bryan, ¶ 46. A denial of this interchange, standing alone, is a violation of a 26 fundamental constitutional right that voids an agency’s action.

27 Second, the interests of Plaintiffs were not “served by Jon” because his interests were not 28 aligned with theirs. As Chairman Regnier acknowledged later in his deposition, Commissioner

1 Bennion was “trying to be a good advocate and give his Republican constituents an advantage.” (Ex
2 35, p.77.) Maximizing Republican seats in the next Legislature by saving Sen. Jones might have
3 been in Commissioner Bennion’s interest, but Plaintiffs’ interest was (and is) simply to keep SD-15
4 open, thereby preserving their right to vote for a senate candidate next year. The Bennion
5 amendment was not the only way of protecting Plaintiffs’ interests. While that amendment would 6 have kept SD-15 open by moving Sen. Hamlett to SD-12, leaving all holdover assignments
7 undisturbed would have done so, too. Surprisingly, the option of simply rejecting both proposed
8 holdover amendments was not discussed by Commissioners at the meeting on February 12. (Ex 23.)

9 Third, like the plaintiff in Bryan, Plaintiffs had evidence and arguments to bring to the table
10 that was not brought by others, such as the fact that (1) nearly all SD-15 voters would suffer a 2-year
11 disenfranchisement if Sen. Hamlett was assigned to their district and (2) voters in Fergus County, 12 Judith Basin and Petroleum Counties suffered a similar disenfranchisement during the last
13 redistricting cycle -- information that commissioners never discussed during the hearing on February
14 12 and apparently did not know. (Ex 23; Ex 38.)

15 Plaintiffs would have objected to the Jones Amendment had they known of it beforehand.
16 (Ex 38, ¶ 9.) Given that Chairman Regnier was undecided until the final moments of the hearing, 17 (Ex 35, p.63), and given the importance he places on public input, (Ex 35, p.61), Plaintiffs’ lack of 18 opportunity to win over his tie-breaking vote was particularly unfortunate.

19 The Commission’s failure to permit public observation of its deliberations as required by 20 Article II, § 9 of the Constitution⁷ deprived Plaintiffs of a reasonable opportunity to participate in the 21 operations of the Commission prior to it making a final decision on the Jones Amendment, thereby
22 violating their Right to Participate under Article II, § 8 of the Constitution. This additional violation 23 constitutes another basis for enjoining the enforcement of the Jones Amendment.

28 ⁷ See pp. 8-11, supra.

1 V THE COMMISSION FAILED TO SUBMIT THE JONES AMENDMENT
2 TO THE LEGISLATURE FOR ITS RECOMMENDATIONS AS REQUIRED BY 3 ARTICLE V, §14(4) OF THE CONSTITUTION

4 The Montana Constitution requires the Commission to submit its plan to the Legislature for 5 recommendations.⁸ The Commission did this on January 8, 2013. (Ex. 12.) Its holdover
6 assignments at that time, which included Sen. Ripley to SD-9 and Sen. Hamlett to SD-10, (Ex. 12, 7 p.21), were an integral part of that plan. (Ex 35, p.24; see also Wheat v. Brown, 2004 MT 33, ¶17,
8 320 Mont. 15, 85 P.3d 765.) The Legislature offered no recommendations regarding the assignment
9 of Sen. Ripley and Sen. Hamlett. (Ex 19; Ex 20.)

10 After receiving the Legislature’s recommendations, the Commission approved the Jones 11 Amendment reassigning Sens. Ripley and Hamlett to SD-10 and SD-15, respectively. (Ex 21.) The 12 Commission never submitted the Jones Amendment to the Legislature. (Ex 35, pp. 67-68.) As a 13 result, a portion of the plan filed with the Secretary of State was never presented to the Legislature
14 for its recommendations as required by Article V, §14(4) of the Montana Constitution. This 15 violation renders void those portions of the plan that were not submitted to the Legislature, i.e., the 16 Jones Amendment reassigning Sens. Ripley and Hamlett to SD-10 and SD-15, respectively.

17
18 VI ADVANCING SEN. JONES’ CAMPAIGN TWO YEARS BY DISENFRANCHISING
19 RESIDENTS IN SD-15 FOR TWO YEARS VIOLATES PLAINTIFFS’ RIGHT OF 20 SUFFRAGE UNDER ARTICLE II, § 13

21 Article II, § 13 of the Montana Constitution provides that “All elections shall be free and 22 open, and no power, civil or military, shall at any time interfere to prevent the free exercise of the 23 right of suffrage.” The Constitution’s Right of Suffrage is part of the Declaration of Rights and is

24 ⁸ This requirement is found in Article V, § 14(4) of the Constitution, which states as follows:

25 The commission shall submit its plan for legislative districts to the legislature 26 at the first regular session after its appointment or after the census figures are 27 available. Within 30 days after submission, the legislature shall return the plan 28 to the commission with its recommendations. Within 30 days thereafter, the commission shall file its final plan for legislative districts with the secretary of state and it shall become law.

1 therefore a fundamental constitutional right. State v. Riggs, 2005 MT 124, ¶ 47, 327 Mont. 196, 113
2 P.3d 281, quoting Butte Community Union v. Lewis, 219 Mont. 426, 430, 712 P.2d 1309, 1311
3 (1986). It provides greater protection for voting rights than does the United States Constitution,
4 which contains no express right to vote. Cf. Weinschenk v. State, 203 S.W.3d 201, 211-12
5 (Mo.2006) (Missouri Constitution, which contains a right of suffrage identical to that of the Montana
6 Constitution, gives “more expansive and concrete protections of the right to vote” and therefore 7 “provides greater protection than its federal counterpart”). “The most stringent standard, strict 8 scrutiny, is imposed when the action complained of interferes with the exercise of a fundamental 9 right,” meaning that the action must be narrowly tailored to achieve a compelling state interest.
10 Wadsworth v. State, 275 Mont. 287, 302, 911 P.2d 1165, 1174 (1996).

11 If a district’s residents last voted for a senate candidate in 2010, and they are then saddled
12 with a holdover senator in 2013, they will be forced to wait six years between senate elections rather 13 than four. (Ex 34, pp.34-35.) These voters are “temporarily disenfranchised”⁹ and therefore 14 deprived of their right of suffrage. The State is obliged to minimize such disenfranchisement when 15 assigning holdover senators. See, e.g., Vandermost v. Bowen, 269 P.3d 446, 482 (Cal.2012) (court 16 rejected voter’s challenge to redistricting plan in part because voter’s alternative plan resulted in 17 senate elections being delayed for greater number of voters).

18 SD-15 consists of approximately 19,000 residents (95% of the district’s population) living in 19 areas in which the last senate election occurred in 2010. (Ex 37 [Stipulated Fact #11].) By assigning 20 Sen. Hamlett to SD-15, the Commission delayed the next senate election in SD-15 from 2014 to 21 2016, thereby disenfranchising 19,000 residents of SD-15 for two years.

22 In fairness to the Commission, the overall number of voters disenfranchised by the Jones
23 Amendment is less than 19,000. Besides assigning a holdover to SD-15, the amendment removed a 24 holdover (Sen. Ripley) from SD-9, thereby advancing the next senate election in SD-9 from 2016 to 25

26 ⁹ Comment, One Person, No Vote: Staggered Elections, Redistricting, and Disenfranchisement, 27 121 YALE L.J. 2013, 2013 (2012); Wilson v. Eu, 823 P.2d 545, 559 (Cal.1992) (describing a similar 28 process in California as “partially disenfranchising” voters).

1 2014. Because SD-9 consists of 12,767 residents (64.5% of the district’s population) living in areas
2 in which the last state senate election occurred in 2010, (Ex 37 [Stipulated Fact #12]), the 3 Commission’s amendment decreased the number of disenfranchised residents in SD-9 by 12,767.

4 Nevertheless, the net increase in disenfranchisement resulting from the Jones Amendment is 5 staggering. The combined population of SD-9 and SD-15 is 39,790. (Stipulated Facts #11 and 6 12.)¹⁰ Prior to the Jones Amendment, 32.1% of that group (12,767 out of 39,790) would have been
7 disenfranchised during the senate elections in 2014. The amendment will disenfranchise 47.8%
8 (19,000 out of 39,790) of that population during the 2014 election – a net increase of 6,233 residents.

9 Because the Jones Amendment substantially increases the number of voters suffering a 10 violation of their right of suffrage under the Montana Constitution, it can only be justified if it is 11 narrowly tailored to achieve a compelling state interest. The purpose of the amendment was to 12 enable Sen. Jones to stand for reelection in 2014 rather than wait until 2016. Even accepting at face
13 value the qualities attributed to Sen. Jones by the signatories of the Cook Letter, (Ex. 15), facilitating 14 the political career of any single person should never be a compelling state interest justifying the 15 disenfranchisement of thousands of voters. The Jones Amendment therefore violates Plaintiffs’ right 16 of suffrage provided by the Montana Constitution, a violation that provides yet another basis for 17 invalidating the amendment.

19 CONCLUSION

20 For all of the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request this Court grant its motion for 21 summary judgment and enjoin the State from enforcing the Jones Amendment.

27 ¹⁰ SD-10 is not relevant to this analysis because the Commission assigned a holdover senator to 28 that district both before and after approving the Jones Amendment in February.
