

The above chart shows the year over year revenue growth in general fund revenue collections since FY 2005.

The time span includes the economic downturn of the great recession of 2008-2009. In addition, the anticipation of higher federal tax rates on capital gains income due to the federal fiscal cliff at the end of 2012 may have resulted in revenue shifting from FY 2014 to FY 2013 as individuals accelerated the realization of their capital gains income.
