Background Materials and Research

Topic Summary: The National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) is a national background check system used to check available records to determine if an individual might be barred by federal or state laws from possessing a firearm. The NICS is operated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and records are submitted by state and federal agencies. An individual might be barred by federal law from possessing a firearm for several reasons including: a felony conviction, being in the U.S. illegally or unlawfully, dishonorable discharge for the U.S. Armed Services, being subject to a restraining order for violence against an intimate partner or child, a domestic violence conviction, or being adjudicated as a mental defective or having been committed to a mental institution, among other reasons. [The term “mental defective” is used in federal law, which is why this document uses the term.]
