The Basics

- Legislative redistricting = redrawing boundaries of state legislative districts
- Happens every 10 years
  - adjusts the population after the decennial census
- Montana uses an independent commission
- Commission uses mandatory and discretionary criteria to guide line drawing
  - Mandatory criteria from U.S. and Montana constitutions
  - Discretionary are “traditional criteria” selected by commissioners
Mandatory Criteria

- Population equality and maximum population deviation
  - Ideal state house district size = 9,894 people
  - Population deviation of +/- 3% (9,597 to 10,190)
- Compact and contiguous districts
- Protection of minority voting rights and compliance with the Voting Rights Act
- Race cannot be the predominant factor to which the traditional discretionary criteria are subordinated.
Discretionary Criteria

- Following the lines of political units
- Following geographic boundaries
- Keeping communities of interest intact

What Can You Do?

• Review Tentative Commission Plan and tell the commissioners what you like and what you suggest be changed.
  • Visit www.leg.mt.gov/districting to see detailed maps

• Provide comment on what House districts might be paired to form a Senate district

• Testify at the November and December public hearings
Districting and Apportionment Commission 2011-2012

Redistricting is the act of drawing new political boundaries. In Montana, the five-member Districting and Apportionment Commission has authority under the Montana Constitution to draw the boundaries of congressional and legislative districts every 10 years. Using population data from the most recent U.S. Census, the commission will draw districts with approximately the same number of people in them. The process must be completed by early 2013. Because Montana has only one congressional district, the commission will focus on redrawing state legislative district lines.

In early 2010, the commission adopted districting criteria to use when creating and judging maps; the commission’s operating procedures provide more detail about how it will complete the redistricting task.
