To the Members of the Montana Redistricting Commission:

The so-called "communities" plan is a poor choice for Yellowstone County. It slices through neighborhoods and communities to draw huge, strangely shaped legislative districts. It was developed by the Montana Democratic party to give their candidates an unfair advantage in elections. I urge the commission to reject the poorly-named "Communities" map and instead draw new districts based on neighborhood task force lines, school districts, city wards and other common sense subdivisions. The redistricting process should not be about deciding what the partisan makeup of the legislature should be. It should be about giving the people their fair representation.
