UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE DOMESTIC VIOLENCE REPORT 2022

Pursuant to MCA 39-51-2111 and 5-11-210, the Department of Labor and Industry submits the biennial Domestic Violence Report to the Legislature. In 2001, victims of domestic violence became eligible for up to 10 weeks of unemployment insurance benefits under Montana law. In 2005, the law was expanded to include victims of sexual violence and stalking and the 10-week cap on benefit duration was eliminated. Victims of domestic violence, sexual assault or stalking, like other claimants, are now eligible for up to 28 weeks of benefits per claim.

During SFY 2021 and SFY 2022, two-thirds of UI claims filed by victims of domestic violence, sexual assault or stalking were allowed. Most claimants were white females (79%), with next highest demographic being American Indian/Alaska Native women (9%). No men filed UI claims as victims of domestic violence, sexual assault or stalking in the past two fiscal years.
